This book, the first in a series dedicated to the fascinating variety of nature on the continent, depicts a surprising portrait of Europe's ecological riches and resources. Over 40 areas are presented, from the great Bialowieza Forest in Poland to the vast rice-growing wetlands of northern Italy, and on to the Danube Delta. They have been selected from the continent's great national parks and wild nature reserves. The essays, by an eminent zoologist, reflect meticulous scientific research yet are written with a delightful, easy-to-read style. The book also features a comprehensive collection of pictures, with panoramic photographs and close-ups of the different environments and their fauna to help readers discover the natural riches of Europe.
